Inspired by the deconstruction art movement that dared to challenge the constricting rules of modernism, the deconstructed journal dares to do away with the traditional spine. This unique ""exposed"" binding allows the journal to open flat a full 180 degrees enabling you to utilize the entire page. Like a comfortable pair of jeans, the rough canvas cover is soft to the touch and weathered on the edges. Unlike a pair of jeans, the cover is direct off-set printed to showcase the fanciful floral illustrations of Helen Dardik. Deconstructed journals have 192 lined pages with stylish rounded corners and colorful artistic accents throughout. Whether used for daily journaling or class notes, it's nice to have inspiring artwork with you wherever you go!

ABOUT THE ARTIST: Helen Dardik was born in Ukraine, grew up in Siberia, finished art school in Israel and completed a graphic design degree in Canada. She is a pattern designer, an illustrator, a painter and a toy maker whose work is a delightful combination of retro whimsy and modern fun that's bursting with color, texture and pattern.
